

SCENA PLASTYCZNA

CHOPIN THEATRE VISUAL STAGE KUL

I THINK BY MEANS OF IMAGES

There is a direct proportion between the scarcity of my verbal expression and the number of words used in my productions. I am aware that the relation has a common root, which is both biographical and objective, I think. In my third production mounted for the Scena Plastyczna of KUL ("Supper" - 1972), words have disappeared; I have been maturing to silence like others have been coming to full eloquence. All of my sarcastic declarations aimed at words, spoken or written, refer also to this text. Maybe, I am the least competent person to talk about my art. The most essential thing I can say about a spectacle is one word only: its title. The rest should be seen and experienced.

Thus, it is not enough to say that I have turned to silence since the dreary and sham pomposity of my childhood days, and the babbling as well as equal pretence of the later times had oppressed and terrified me, although, it is undoubtedly a part of that which determines me. I think, however, that the most important reason of my successive "reductions" (word-actor-concrete) in my spectacles is a strong conviction that there are some spheres of reality, especially of human reality, which become hurt when spoken of, what a mom, I maintain, that, with reference to these spheres, there are some appropriate means of artistic expression to reveal their truth. One of the art theories states that operatic singers who want to render the opera substance adequately cannot utter the words but must sing them. Much the same, the reality with which the productions of the Scena Plastyczna are concerned becomes manifest in its peculiar scenic space constructed of light, rhythm and atmosphere. This reality is a deeply human one consisting of simplicity based on "great religious and cultural symbols".

The idea of the spectacles are some ultimate passions and existential states which man is not always able to cope with. Love, faith, sanctity, fight, a sense of finiteness and death, this is what populates the space of those productions, and, in substance, I have been making one spectacle from the beginnings in 1969 to the last production, "The Gateway" in 1983.
